Prospects who aren't ready to buy - or who are "sitting on the fence" - tend to be resistant to even well-crafted marketing messages. But a bunch of well aimed marketing case studies can often tip the scales in your favour. "Sell benefits, not features" is good advice, but benefit-rich copy can actually deter prospects who haven't reached the decision

Marketing Case Study. Every good case study maintains one singular focus: how Company “A” accomplished “B” by using “XZY”. This means most marketing case studies tend to take on an easily understandable problem-solution structure. For the remainder of this section, let’s think of a marketing case study as a recipe.
