Christian Habicht, Cicero the Politician, is a short (99 pages of text) history of Cicero's life and times. Its brevity makes it a useful starting point and overview. Even shorter (84 pages of text) is Thomas Wiedemann, Cicero and the End of the Roman Republic. Weidemann even finds room for photographs and drawings, which makes this book perhaps too short.

Cicero | Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy

On Duties is in the form of an extended letter from Cicero to his twenty-one-year-old son, Marcus, who is, at the time, studying in Athens. This is Cicero's major ethical writing and his final philosophical work, done in the last year and a half of his life. He explicitly follows, to the degree that makes sense to him, a text by the modified Stoic philosopher, Panaetius, who had direct impact in the previous century on the statesmen Scipio and Laelius.

Cicero is a rarity in history: a philosophically inclined man who held political power. He was born in Arpinum in 106 BC. His political career took place during the twilight of the ailing Roman Republic. He was a self- described constitutionalist, but also a dedicated moderate who wished for peace and harmony above all else.
